Protect the next generation of California families in every community from being taxed out of their property when a parent dies.

Preserve affordable housing when mom-and-pop landlords die.
Currently, buildings are fully reassessed on transfer. Rent-controlled units are likely to be demolished if the property is sold due to the much higher tax bill.

Protect family businesses built up over generations, now threatened with unaffordable property taxes when parents pass away and kids take over.

Restore constitutional rights approved unanimously by the Legislature and by 75% of voters with the passage of Prop. 58 in 1986, enabling the transfer of certain, limited property between parents and children while keeping the tax bill the same.
